Brief aim(s) of the proposal and the outcome(s) you want to achieve

To redesign children's centres by developing a new delivery model based on family centres for 0 -19 year olds, (25 years old if the young person has a disability).

The family centres will be located in the 20% most deprived areas of the City within 7 locality areas and services will be available across Sheffield from link and outreach sites including community venues and in the home.

Summary of impact

The proposed reorganisation into family centres will improve the health and well being of children and young people across the City. The main focus will be to meet the needs of the most vulnerable families and support local communities by distributing resources where they are most needed. Evidence of need and this approach will also help to maximise resource allocation and utilisation at a time of diminishing resources. Stakeholders support the need to target resources to those families most in need. Access to services will be improved through the reorganisation of children's centres into family centres so that families in poverty are able to locally access services. Improved integration of services and further development of a whole family approach and whole family plan will help to reduce inequalities in child development and improve parents' aspirations, self esteem and parenting skills thus improving life chances.

Supporting evidence

A total of 616 questionnaires were received and recorded on Citizen Space. Approximately 21% did not use a Children's Centre but within the remaining 78% all centres were represented. Responses identified accessing adult learning, training and employment support as well as support regarding home and money including impartial debt advice as being the least important.

and their families.

A total of 616 questionnaires were received and recorded on Citizen Space. Approximately 21% did not use a Children's Centre but within the remaining 78% all centres were represented. There was a wide range of services that respondants said they utilise including midwifery, health visiting, toddler groups, training opportunities and advice services. Of those that supplied information, the majority (53%) were in the age bracket of 25 – 34 years.

Respondents were asked what was important to them in accessing services. The following areas were felt to be the most important:

- To support their own and their child's health and wellbeing
- To meet other parents/children and develop support networks
- · To support knowledge and understanding of child development
- To access support and advice during pregnancy including having a baby and parenting classes

When asked their views on extending services to pre-birth to 19 (25 years if child has a disability), providing support for the whole family 74% agreed or strongly agreed with this proposal Only 13% either disagreed or strongly disagreed.

The additional comments highlighted that existing services should not be diluted in order to offer services to the older age group and asked that these changes ensure that the importance of early years is still recognised as part of this wider work.

A total of 616 questionnaires were received and recorded on Citizen Space. Approximately 21% did not use a Children's Centre but within the remaining 78% all centres were represented.

90% of respondants were female and t here was a wide range of services that respondents said they utilise including midwif e ry, health visiting, toddler groups, training opportunities and advice services.

Respondents were asked what was important to them in accessing services. The following areas were felt to be the most important:

- To support their own and their child's health and wellbeing
- To meet other parents/children and develop support networks
- To support knowledge and understanding of child development
- To access support and advice during pregnancy including having a baby and parenting classes

The comments received indicated that the distance they would need to travel would be the influencing factor and services local and close to home were important often because of the difficulty of using public transport. However easy access by public transport was considered by some and many that commented said they would be willing to consider travel and that they often already do. The additional comments highlighted that existing services should not be diluted in order to offer services to the older age group and asked that these changes ensure that the importance of early years is still recognised as part of this wider work.

Overall summary of possible impact

To redesign children's centres by developing a new delivery model based on family centres for 0 -19 year olds, (25 years old if the young person has a disability).

The family centres will be located in the 20% most deprived areas of the City within 7 locality areas and services will be available across Sheffield from link and outreach sites including community venues and in the home.

There were 616 responses to the Statutory Consultation which were recorded on Citizen Space. 78% of the respondants used Children's Centres and all centres were represented in the responses.

There was a wide range of services that respondents said they utilise including midwifery, health visiting, toddler groups, training opportunities and advice services. Respondents identified the following areas as the most important:

- To support their own and their child's health and wellbeing
- To meet other parents/children and develop support networks
- To support knowledge and understanding of child development
- To access support and advice during pregnancy including having a baby and parenting classes

74% of responses supported extending services to pre-birth to 19 (25 years if child has a disability) and comments highlighted that that the importance of early years is still recognised as part of the wider age range and work.

The new familiy centres will have a positive impact on tackling poverty; health; age (young people 0-19 or 0-25 where a young person is disabled); disability; pregnancy and maternity; different racial groups; both gender's though it is recognised that the majority of staff and service users are female; the Voluntary, Commuiniy and Faith sector and partner organsiations.
