Introduction: Why do we need an All- Age Emotional and Mental Health and Wellbeing Strategy for Sheffield?

- Sheffield needs it: Good mental health is key for everything, and poor mental health is impacting on the life chances of children, young people and adults in the city. We are seeing a significant increase in emotional and mental health problems associated with Covid-19, and some services have long waiting lists. But more than this, the city has been impacted by many years of structural inequalities across our communities and underinvestment in our services, not helped by cost of living crises.
- Our children and young people need it: Many of those who have severe and enduring mental illness in adulthood are diagnosed when they are children or young people. If we want to act preventatively, we need to act now to support our children, young people and their families – and we know that many are struggling and need targeted help and support.
- Professionals need it: Improving and protecting the mental health of Sheffield is something no single person or organisation can do alone – we want to provide a framework for professionals to work together.

This strategy sets out an ambitious vision for the city’s emotional recovery and the wellbeing of Sheffield people. We need our services to be excellent, joined up, and to support people in the right way. Working in partnership, we know we can begin to make the changes we need.

1. What's our vision for emotional and mental health in Sheffield?

1. Mental and emotional health and wellbeing are at the heart of all we do as a city
2. Mental and emotional health and wellbeing is valued the same as physical health
3. Mental wellness, resilience and the prevention of illness are promoted at the earliest opportunity
4. Discrimination and inequalities that lead to poor health and mortality are tackled
5. Children and young people's emotional health and wellbeing is a top priority
6. The right care and support is provided at the right time and as close to home as possible
7. People are recovering from mental illness and are able to live healthy and fulfilled lives

How did we develop this strategy?

We co-produced the approach to developing the strategy

We hosted consultation events with a range of service users, groups and partners, including with children and young people, and looked at what the numbers tell us about people's mental and emotional health and wellbeing in Sheffield

We made sure we aligned our strategy with other organisation's strategies and the things they had learned from their consultation events

We invited and received comments on the final draft from a range of partners, including Experts by Experience

What have people told us is important to them?

“What will we see that’s different?” – public bodies need to communicate what they are doing and how it’s making a difference

Less of a focus on ‘treatment’ and medicine; more of a focus on and investment in resilience, community, education and employment, support for carers and early intervention and prevention

Integrated services and funding that are high quality, local where possible, are culturally appropriate, easy to access, put people first and connect up physical and mental health

Campaigns and education; that the city is comfortable and professionals trained to talk about mental health

Greater response to the increasing complexity of need and demand for support – especially with cost of living crises

That services recognise the trauma people may have experienced and support those who have experienced disadvantage

Commissioning approaches must change to enable innovation and creativity

What do we know about local need?

Mental ill health represents 28% of ill health that the NHS deals with and is the largest single cause of disability. However, only 13% of England's health budget is spent on mental health

138,000 children, young people and adults in Sheffield will experience a mental health problem each year. Half of all mental health problems are established by the age of 14, rising to 75 per cent by age 24

One in four 17-19-year-olds in England had a probable mental disorder in 2022 (up from one in six in 2021). Positively, uptake from BAME communities using the Kooth service increased from 17% in 2020 to over 23% in 2022 due to targeted local engagement work

It is estimated that up to 20% of women will experience mental health problems during the perinatal period

It is estimated that 15,000 Sheffield children and young people live with a parent who lives with a mental health disorder. Many will be young carers

An estimated 1.25 million people have an eating disorder in the UK, and they can be complex and life-threatening mental illnesses

The proportion of homeless people in Sheffield with a diagnosed mental health condition (63%) is over double that of the general population (around 25%)

South Yorkshire and Bassetlaw has a higher suicide rate than the England average

In England in 2017/18, rates of detention under the Mental Health Act were over four times higher for Black/Black British ethnicity than White British ethnicity

300,000 people in work with a long term mental health condition lose their jobs every year

The average life expectancy for someone with a long-term mental health illness is at least 15-20 years shorter than for someone without (from preventable causation)

There are approximately 7,000 people living with dementia in Sheffield – just over 1% of the whole city's population

2. What principles are important for us?

1. Address the wider determinants of health

We will:

- Improve awareness in the wider population and workforce to support good emotional health and wellbeing and reduce stigma, including through compassionate approaches which recognise the trauma some people have experienced
- Enable employment and training opportunities for people with mental health conditions and help employers look after the wellbeing people who are in work
- Connect to wider programmes and public policy which tackle poverty and inequality, such as housing, education and skills
- See the value of the contribution made by the voluntary, community, social enterprise sector and faith and community groups and recognising the support of community-based support which combats isolation and supports connection and recovery

2. Support the emotional and mental health and wellbeing of our children and young people

We will:

- Develop support for infant mental health and peri/prenatal services to give children a great start in life and support their and their family's attachment, attunement and attainment
- Increase early intervention and targeted support for school-age children, and give schools and other professionals the tools they need to support to children's emotional health, wellbeing and resilience
- Provide intensive outreach and home treatment services, and better, earlier crisis care including safe space alternatives to A&E and approaches to support suicide prevention and awareness
- Work in partnership with the provider collaborative to reduce avoidable admission to inpatient care
- Support young people to receive developmentally appropriate care as they grow into young adults and ensure clear service pathways are in place that work for them especially for those aged 16-25
- Protect and safeguard children and young people from exploitation and abuse

3. Provide earlier help to people who need it

We will:

- Transform community based and primary care mental health provision to make it easier to get help
- Expand access to talking therapies and increase the range of different therapies available
- Provide better, more joined up, whole-family support to carers and families at the earliest point
- Intervene and promote resilience for our children, young people and adults at an early stage

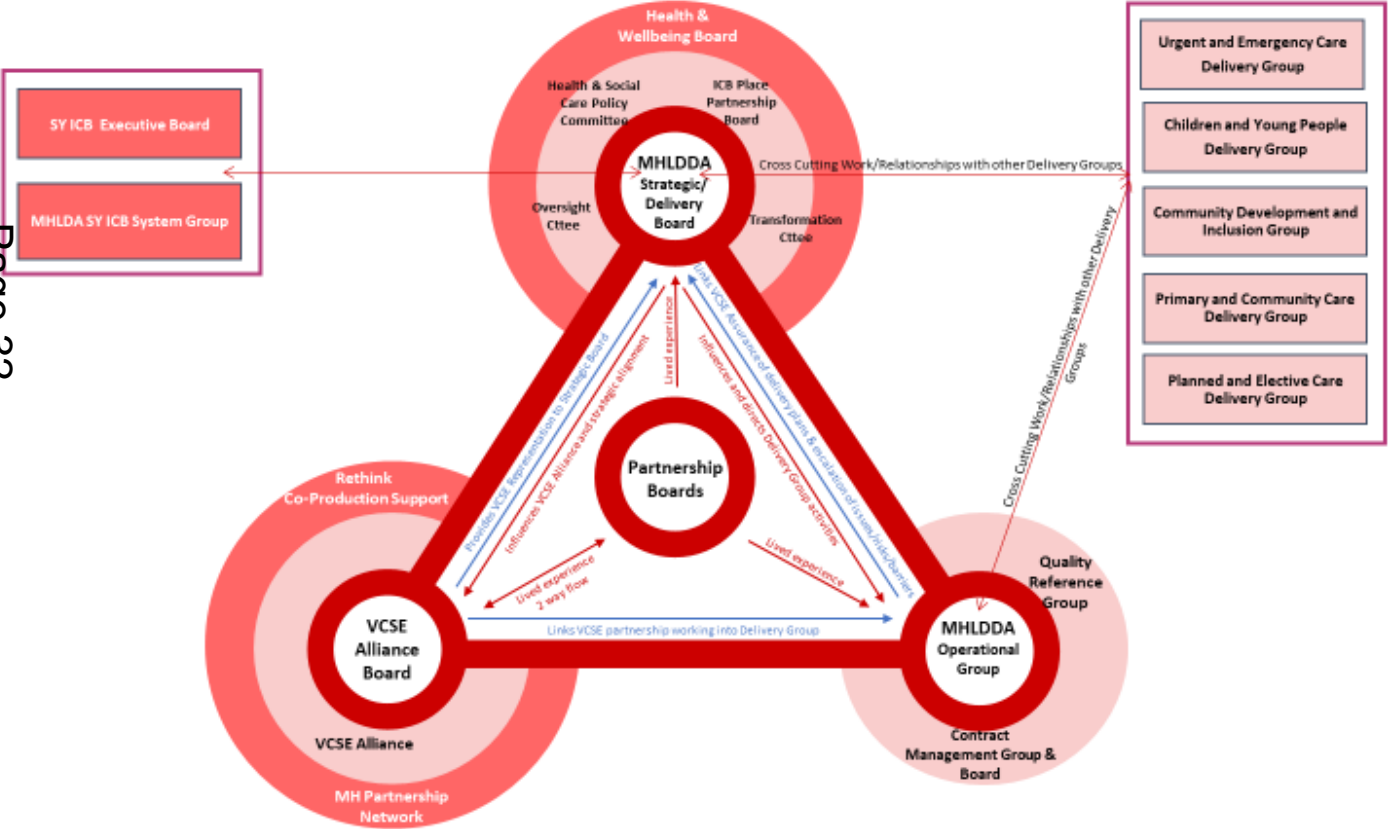

4. Provide effective and good quality care and treatment services

We will:

- Transform our crisis response services including home treatment, earlier support, access to crisis 'buddies', and alternatives to A&E such as crisis cafes and safe spaces
- Improve inpatient care and our inpatient facilities, and invest in training and workforce
- Provide effective and purposeful reviews of care to support people in their journey of recovery and independence
- Continue to review presenting priorities within the Sheffield population and invest to meet this need
- Work in concert with the provider collaboratives to ensure clear areas of responsibility and service pathways
- Ensure that the accommodation services we commission help people to live as independently as possible in the community

4. How will we will monitor our strategy?

- Working in partnership is really important to us. Each and every partner has a critical part to play in this system, and the latest NHS reforms have solidified the importance of partnership in strategic commissioning
- Over the last few years we have especially been developing our partnership with the voluntary and community sector who play a crucial role both helping people in their communities and in supporting people to have their voice in the decision-making process. The Mental Health Partnership Network, Mental Health Alliance, and Mental Health Collaborative provide opportunities for voluntary sector provider organisations and service users to feed into service planning, commissioning and delivery
- We will be developing a delivery plan with outcomes for this strategy which will be overseen by a delivery group, reporting to the Mental Health, Learning Disabilities, Dementia and Autism (MHLDDA) Board. These groups have a range of partners on them, working together to bring about change for Sheffield
- The MHLDDA Board feeds up to other city-wide boards, including the Health and Care Partnership Board and the Health and Wellbeing Board - as well as South-Yorkshire-wide boards, which the diagram to the left explains

5. What links are there to other strategies in Sheffield?

We have drawn upon a number of other strategies to build our plan, including:
