What do we do?

The Council has a statutory duty to regulate the private rented sector

There are around 45,000 private rented properties in Sheffield, overtaking the council stock which is just under 39,000.

Fastest growing sector which has doubled in past 10 years and is expected to double again the next 10 years. During same period, this frontline team has halved.

Our objective output is to ensure people are safe in their homes and that properties are well managed

Case Study

Tragic tenant made desperate help plea

'Vulnerable' man was barred from home by landlord days before he died

A TENANT allegedly barred from his home by his landlord several days before he was found dead in his room, a Sheffield judge has ruled. Michael White, 47, was found dead in his room at the Rivoli Valley, Sheffield, on August 1, 2011. The judge, Mr. Justice, ruled that the landlord, Sudhir Soogambur, was liable for the death. The judge found that Mr. White was a "very vulnerable" man and that the landlord had a duty of care towards him. The judge also found that the landlord had failed to provide a safe and sound accommodation for Mr. White. The judge ordered that the landlord should pay compensation to the tenant's family.

Rogue landlord is spared from jail

Man, 47, died after being locked out of his home

THE sister of a man who died after being allegedly evicted today welcomed a Sheffield judge's decision to spare her rogue landlord from prison. Susan Roberts and her brother Michael White, 47, were friends for years before he was locked out of his flat in Northwood Road, Sheffield, and left with nowhere to go. About the following week of August 1st, 2011, he was found dead in his room at the Rivoli Valley. Sheffield Council successfully prosecuted Soogambur on the death man's behalf. Soogambur, now of Darkest Road, Crowthorne, one of the first people in the country to be convicted of illegal eviction in a prosecution by a local authority, was spared jail. The judge, Mr. Justice, ruled that the landlord, Sudhir Soogambur, was liable for the death. The judge found that Mr. White was a "very vulnerable" man and that the landlord had a duty of care towards him. The judge also found that the landlord had failed to provide a safe and sound accommodation for Mr. White. The judge ordered that the landlord should pay compensation to the tenant's family.

Sudhir Soogambur: Rogue landlord spared prison

He was fined £1,000 and ordered to pay a further £1,000 legal costs over the cost of his defence. Speaking after the case, Mrs Roberts said: "I am very pleased that the council took the case on as there was no one else to do it, and I am pleased with the result. "The death has been very upsetting for us all, but I am glad it has not resulted in a criminal sentence for my brother. I don't think I would have been happy with that. Michael lived at that flat for a long time, and had reported Mr Soogambur as his friend." Sheffield Crown Court heard Soogambur ordered Mr. White from his home of six years in May, 2011, because he needed to give his then wife £116,000 as part of a divorce settlement. He then sent surveyors to change the locks on the door without Mr. White's permission, leaving him homeless. In desperation, Mr. White checked into a Salvation Army hostel but three days after he was found dead in shallow water in the Rivoli Valley. An inquest found he had drowned but was unable to determine the precise cause and recorded an open verdict. Dermot Hughes, prosecution solicitor, said: "We had been asking that on July 27 he would put the key in the lock but the lock would not be turning." George Shaw, defending, said Soogambur had reasonable cause to believe Mr. White had vacated the premises. Council bosses in Sheffield brought the rare prosecution on behalf of the dead man after he complained to them he had been forced out. Dave Hickling, the council's Tenancy Relations Officer, said: "There are many vulnerable people living in private rented accommodation, and Michael White was one of them. Although we can't be sure from the council, he was with us that day the sudden and untimely loss of his home did cause him great distress. "We brought the prosecution because Michael was a vulnerable man who deserved justice."

This includes Compulsory Purchase Orders

The city and service has a strong proven track record of robust regulation and zero tolerance on poor practices

Do have challenges around resources, particularly to senior inspecting officer roles

So, what are we doing about this?

Currently have high level apprenticeship in place with Leeds Beckett University

Working with other Universities and training providers to explore additional apprentice / training schemes

Review of the service is about to start to ensure that we have a robust structure to respond to growing sector and challenges

Conducting a programme of checks to ensure all high-rise and high-risk buildings in Sheffield are safe for their residents regardless of tenure

Focus on private sector as part of new regulatory arrangement being worked through with the Strategic Fire Safety Board

Private Housing Standards received additional funding to establish a dedicated team to carry out regulation and High Rise Residential Buildings

National shortage of qualified staff to undertake complex enforcement work.

Number of Local Authorities regularly carrying out recruitment

- This along with significant increase in demand across the sector is putting pressure on existing resources
